Vote to Keep City, County on War Time

MANSFIELD TO MOVE CLOCKS BACK IN FALL

City Will Have 'Slow' Time in Winter, 'Fast' in Summer, Under Council Act.

COUNTY INDEFINITE

Commissioners Fix No Definite Period; Some Rural Schools Go on 'Slow' Time.

Mansfield and Richland county will continue on present Eastern War time under action by city council and the county commissioners yesterday although state agencies and some rural school sections will set their clocks back one hour at 3 a. m. Sunday in conformity to the Ohio legislature's act adopting Eastern Standard time.

City council last night decided in favor of fast time for spring and summer and slow time for fall and winter by passing an ordinance to continue the war complexion of clock faces until the last Sunday in September when the hands will be set back one hour until the third Sunday in February when they will be set ahead.

County commissioners decided to continue the present War time indefinitely rather than to disrupt current schedules in county offices after employes generally expressed favor of retaining the fast time.

School districts throughout Richland county will decide which clock time will be followed. Plymouth already deciding to remain on war time while the Springfield township centralized school at Ontario will begin operation on the new slow time Tuesday. Other boards have not yet decided.

Mansfield public and parochial schools will follow council's edict and remain on the fast time but may adopt the slow time with the beginning of the fall term instead of waiting until the "last Sunday in September" change date.

Fair Board Pays Off Last of Debt With County Aid

The Richland county fair board is out of debt today for the first time since 1934. Besides that the board has $1,425, collected in insurance as the result of the fire which destroyed the fair ground grandstand, invested in war bonds.

Announcement of clearance of the indebtedness came from county commissioners who appropriated $225, in addition to the $2,700 appropriation required by law, to enable the board to clear its obligations. Fair Board Secretary R. D. Hale announced the bond purchase with the insurance money.

Last of the indebtedness fell due today, the commissioners said, with the last payment being made on time.

Map Steps to House 2,500 More In City

WMC Estimates 1,350 In-Migrant Workers Will Arrive.

Estimating an influx of 1,350 in-migrant workers for Mansfield industries by mid-year, the War Manpower commission has asked the housing committee of the Civilian Defense war services division to take immediate steps to provide homes in Mansfield for at least 2,500 persons within the next few months.

H. S. Coil, representing the Cleveland regional office of the National Housing agency, told the Mansfield committee yesterday evening in City Hall defense headquarters, that the employment increase is estimated on optimistic findings of the Mansfield Manufacturers club as of Dec 31 which forecast a gain of 4,500 in the number of locally employed workers by the end of 1943.

Eugene Bell, president of the Mansfield Real Estate board and chairman of the housing committee of OCD, today announced the names of 20 committee members who will assist in the creation of a war housing center. Expense of offices, clerical help and utility services will be borne locally, Coil told the conferees.

The employment increase will represent the in-migration of newcomers and the return of former Mansfielders who were attracted to outside plants during the period of change-over of local industry to war production equipment, Coil said. The outgoing current of labor definitely has been reversed in recent weeks, the WMC representative said.

Normal housing vacancies in a city the size of Mansfield are between four and five per cent but the present Mansfield vacancy is 1.85 per cent after eliminating uninhabitable units and sub-standard structures, Bell said. "A more intensive utilization of existing structures is necessary," he explained, and persons having dwellings, apartments and rooms will be listed and new workers referred to these listings at the war housing center."

Bell emphasized that in addition to the housing supply which will be made available because of the prospective rent income there

RISES TO 43

'Sugar Water' Temperatures to Remain, Weatherman Says.

After another chilly night during which the mercury went down to 19 degrees, "sugar water" weather returned to the Mansfield area today, and the sun was making quick work of ending the snow and ice.

The weatherman said the spring-like weather will continue tonight with moderate temperatures on the schedule.

Today's reading was 43 at noon, same as yesterday's high and the mercury was headed for a higher mark during the afternoon.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) —President Roosevelt said today that it was decided last August how many men should go into the army this year, and so far as the farm labor shortage was concerned he thought use of young people of high school age could do a lot to relieve it.

The decision on the size of the army, he emphasized, was dictated by military necessity. He said it called for 7,500,000 men, exclusive of officers, by next Dec. 31.

With other services, it was brought out in an exchange of questions with reporters at his press conference, this would mean a total of 10,800,000, in all armed services.

(Manpower officials have indicated in recent statements that the total in all armed services would pass 11,000,000 by the end of the year.)

'FREEZE' GOES ON TOMORROW

Sale of Canned Vegetables, Fruits Ceases at Midnight For Rationing Start.

Sale of canned soups, vegetables and fruit, as well as frozen and dried fruits and vegetables will be suspended throughout the country at midnight tomorrow as ration officials prepare for the distribution of war ration book two. Additional hours for point rationing registration were announced in three Richland county school districts today.

Freezing period for the canned items will end March 1, ration officials said, except in the case of canned meat and fish which will come under the meat rationing program about March 28. Informed OPA sources said the per capita meat allowance for civilians may be one and three-fourths pounds or less each week.

The two and one-half pound per week allotment once deemed possible and used as a basis for the government's unsuccessful voluntary meat limitation program was described as "way in the clouds."

Registration will be conducted at Shelby high school next week between the hours of 9 a. m. and 9 p. m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday according to the Shelby rationing board.

HUNT FIREBUG

Police Seek Man Who Set 17 Fires In Cleveland.

CLEVELAND (INS)—One of the biggest manhunts in Cleveland's history ranged citywide today in an attempt to trap a pyromaniac believed responsible for 17 fires in three days in the Euclid-East 79th area.

Police were holding a 34-year-old pyromaniac last night when fires broke out in an office theater building and two apartment houses.

Blood Donors Meet Quota for First Day; 23 Fail to Report

Mansfield and Richland county met its first day blood donor quota of 140 pints with one pint to spare, according to the report of the Red Cross committee in charge of registrations for the Cleveland mobile unit stationed at the Presbyterian church. Indications were that today's similar quota would also be reached.

There were 23 persons who failed to report, and didn't trouble themselves to telephone their regrets yesterday, Miss Mariam Hooper, Red Cross executive said. This delinquency, she pointed out, caused an undue hardship on the registration committee headed by Mrs. William Layton. Their schedule calls for 10 donors every 15 minutes, with failures to appear upsetting the entire day's program.

Although visitors are not encouraged to come to the blood donor headquarters, one yesterday's visitor did bolster morale there. He was Cpl. Foye T. Charles who gave blood to aid a wounded companion while stationed with the marines in Guadalcanal.

With 160 containers prepared for the yesterday's supply of blood, it was more luck than planning that the 141 pints collected exactly filled the available receptacles since 19 of the containers were damaged beyond use.

NEW TOP RANK

Knox Asks Establishing of 'Admiral of the Fleet.'

WASHINGTON — (AP) Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox has requested legislation to establish a new No. 1 rank in the navy—admiral of the fleet.

The new rank, if authorized, would be conferred on Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet and chief of naval operations. Legislation creating the new post has been introduced by Rep. Margaret Chase Smith, (R., Me.), member of the house naval affairs committee.

Knox sought creation of the rank more as a matter of protocol than for the handling of new duties. The new rank would place King on an equal footing with top ranking officers of other navies, particularly the British and French.

4 to 54 on Victory Book Honor Roll Given Star Awards

Four of the 54 organizations on the honor roll of the victory book campaign, posted in the Mansfield Public library, have stars beside them which indicate they are 100 per cent book contributors.

It is the aim of the campaign to have every member of every organization, whether civic, social, or religious to contribute a good book to the drive for USO use.

Stars beside the names of the Rachel France guild, of the Presbyterian church, the Farm and Country Garden club, the Woman's Civic club and Girl Scout Troop 23, indicate they have reached this goal. Names on the honor roll denote participation in the campaign.

Individuals, too, regardless of whether or not they are affiliated with any group, are invited to bring their donation of good books, not magazines, to the book depot in the library, where organizations will also bring their supplies.

The campaign will close about March 15, according to Miss Lois MacKellar, librarian, who represents the National Library association on the local committee. Other committee members are: George Harmony, representing the Red Cross and Emma Waring, the USO.

The national victory book campaign is sponsored by the USO, Red Cross and National Library association.

Hearers Find Arrau Concert 'Monotonously Spectacular'

By KEN WOODMAN

Playing for about 1,200 members of the Mansfield Civic Music association last night at John Sumpson auditorium, Claudio Arrau lived up to his advance publicity as a virtuoso pianist.

Arrau played a spectacular concert and in the Brahms Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel, he demonstrated exceptional musical understanding as well. In fact, Mansfielders are not likely to hear Brahms' music better played in a generation. There were times in the long, expertly-composed number that Arrau's playing was reminiscent of Paderewski.

But the number was poorly placed on the program. In length and variety of musical construction it could well have been—it should have been—a "group" in itself. As it was, the audience had just sat through another set of variations by Haydn and before the magnificent Brahms number was finished many were openly squirming in their seats.

By such an arrangement Arrau, or whoever made up his program, did himself a great injustice.

And the same must be said for much of the remainder of the program. It was nearly all spectacle. It had very little of the simple melodic content that even the most experienced concert goers

FDR PLEDGES MME. CHIANG GREATER AID

Promises to Speed Assistance at Joint Press Conference With China's First Lady.

Generalissimo's Wife Says Chinese Soldiers Can't Fight With Bare Hands.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, in the presence of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, today pledged that American aid to China will be increased just as fast as the Lord will let us.

At an extraordinary press conference, held jointly by the chief executive and the wife of China's fighting generalissimo, President Roosevelt declared that everyone in Washington is pledged to hurry up and increase all possible aid to China in that nation's long fight against the common enemy — Japan.

At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated the American strategy plans involving the severing of Japanese communications lines with her conquered territories in the South Pacific and using China as the most important land base from which to strike at the Japanese island empire itself.

Mme. Chiang, talking to reporters re-echoed President Roosevelt's statement that aid to China would be brought as fast as the Lord will let us, but added that she also recalled another saying which was the Lord helps those who help themselves.

Her statement was interpreted as meaning that China would continue unwaveringly to battle Axis forces in the east until American aid can be brought about by the full force of the United Nations.

The way to hit Japan, President Roosevelt said, was to cut the Japanese life line up near the top, and he added significantly that this can be done now and even more than that, by using China as

SEE TAX CUT

Pennsylvanians Given Hope of $40,000,000 Saving.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) Prospects of a $40,000,000 tax reduction and a $78,000,000 cut in general state government costs during the two-year fiscal period beginning June 1 was held out to Pennsylvania taxpayers today by Gov. Edward Martin.

Martin announced he would ask the legislature to eliminate the state's personal property, bank shares and corporate loans taxes, which bring in $32,000,000 per biennium. He added that he was "giving serious consideration to the repeal of the mercantile tax," which brings in $8,000,000.

The governor also said he would submit next week a biennium general budget of about $335,000,000, compared with $413,000,000 for the current biennium.

British Armies Squeeze Nazis, Take Outpost

U. S. Tanks Bring Enemy to Standstill At Center of Tunisian Front as Russians Slash Half Way Across Nazi Caucasus Escape Route.

BULLETIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA—(U.P.)—Allied planes blasted enemy positions around Feriana, a headquarters communique announced today, while battered American forces regrouped themselves in the hills west of the Germans' Feriana-Sbeitla line.

(By Associated Press)

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's thrust deep into the middle of the 300-mile-long Allied front in Tunisia was described as "broken" today, and a German broadcast reported that the British 8th and 1st armies were moving up on both flanks in a developing north-south squeeze.

A bulletin from Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's headquarters said British 8th army troops yesterday occupied the outpost of Foum Tatahouine, at the southern end of the Mareth line, within 24 hours after patrols scouted the area.

This indicated little or no opposition, and the British communique itself made no mention of fighting in capturing the outpost.

Thirty miles to the north, General Montgomery's big guns were reported shelling the Axis in the Medenine area, immediately in front of the Mareth defense works.

A Berlin broadcast, going even farther than the British war bulletin, said the 8th army was attacking beyond Medenine.

In the American-defended sector 130 miles northwest of the Mareth line, Rommel's smashing 66-mile advance spearheaded by heavy new Mark VI tanks appeared to have come to a standstill.

Gen. Alphonse Juin, the French commander-in-chief, said the Nazi drive had been "broken by decisive action of American tanks" and "German large-scale tank attacks have been warded off by good shooting of British artillery."

An Italian communique, however declared "local operations in central Tunisia are still in progress" and asserted the Axis had captured 2,876 prisoners and seized or destroyed 169 tanks, 95 armored cars, 36 mobile guns and 66 other guns.

These figures were not confirmed by Allied sources, although it was admitted that American losses were heavy.

The Fascist communique also reported Axis forces had repulsed an Allied attack in the northern sector, where Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British 1st army has been operating.

A testimony to American valor in their first all-out clash with Rommel's veteran campaigners came in a front-line dispatch from Harold V. Boyle, Associated Press war correspondent, who said the Americans, reported equipped with only 28-ton tanks against German 60-tonners, fell back in good order without any sign of panic.

On the Russian front, Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's Red armies slashed more than half way through the 70-mile-wide German "escape corridor" from Rostov, driving to a point only 25 miles north of Taganrog on the Sea of Azov.

Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov, was the stumbling-block of the Soviet counter-offensive in 1941 when the Russians recaptured Rostov for the first time.

Dispatches said Taganrog's lifeline was severed with the Red army's capture of Matyéev-Kurgan on the rail line to the north.

"West of Rostov, our troops kept developing their offensive and captured several populated places," the Russian command said.

SUNDAY PUNCH: Yanks Take Nazis 'Worst,' Retreat Calmly

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

WITH U. S. FORCES IN TUNISIA—(AP)—Jerry threw his Sunday punch at us with men, guns and tanks and that, in part, is the story of the American retreat in Tunisia.

The bloody battlefields, littered with broken vehicles and marked with the cross of Germany as well as the star of America, testify that the Nazis had no margin in courage.

Out into the long valley and into the hills they marched and rolled on wheels—thousands of American soldiers fighting mad because they had to march backward toward New York instead of forward toward Tunis and Sfax.

To the Germans it was a retreat. To the Americans it was a strategic withdrawal. But whatever name it's called it had just one effect on the American soldiers and that was to get back at the Germans with all they have just as soon as the commanders give the word.

As one who watched for three straight days as American tankmen threw away their lives in a gamble to stem the onward avalanche of the German armored force, I for one, couldn't question the decision to withdraw.

That's why German patrols

WARNED: Japs Told to Expect Mortal U. S. Blow at Mainland

(By United Press)

The Japanese people considered today a warning from imperial headquarters that the United States was planning "a mortal attack upon the mainland of Japan" from Alaska and China.

Col. Nakao Yahagi, chief of the army press section of Japanese imperial headquarters, said it was "common knowledge" that the attack would come from the north, the Office of War Information said, quoting radio Tokyo.

Alaska was to be the "headquarters for attacks against Japan," Yahagi said. He pointed to "almost daily bombings" of Japanese forces in the Aleutians by American planes, the building of "17 new air fields" in China and "preparations" for direct telephonic communication between Alaska and China.

Yahagi further warned the Japanese that "according to the recently announced Roosevelt message, America is preparing to make the year 1943 a year of final battles of the decisive war" and that the United States was stressing "rapid construction of unsinkable aircraft carriers—that is, land bases."

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Katharine's question, although expected, daunted me for a moment.

But Jack was first in Katharine's mind and she was beginning where she left off when she went to the farm, in asking for news of Jack.

"Nothing direct," I told her evasively, angrily resolved to tell my father that I accidentally had seen Jack at the hideaway and meant to inform Katharine that he was in sanctuary there. But I knew that until I had thrashed that matter out with my father, I could not honorably tell her.

"What do you mean by that?" Katharine asked quickly. "Have you heard anything indirectly?"

"Dicky said he understood from my father that Jack was safe, and was at work on his experiment," I said.

"Then your father knows exactly where he is," she said.

"He has not said so, but I believe he does."

"If he were a young man, I'd choke the truth out of him," she said angrily.

"And I'd hold his hands and feet while you attended to the garroting," I told her with a smile.

"I suppose I might as well laugh as cry," she said, "and I know I'm up against a stone wall. But it's a relief to know even indirectly that he's safe, and when you learn something definite, I know you'll pass it on to me."

Asks About Georges.

In Mary's picturesque parlance, I "felt like a slippery heel," at her encomium, which I so proorly deserved. Yet I did not see how I could go against my father's command, or Jack's, born of his love for his wife. So I was relieved when she turned her attention to something on which I could enlighten her.

"Did I see right out there?" she asked. "Was that really Georges, one time king of Trees? I thought no one knew whether he was alive or dead."

"Most of the world is still in doubt," I told her. "Only a few of his closest friends and a group of his deadly enemies know the truth."

"Knowing, the usual set-up of this family," she said, "I'm willing to wager Georges is in danger and your father is protecting him."

"Yes, Georges is in danger," I said, "and we're involved in a most bizarre situation, of which I'll tell you presently. But first I want to know all about Faith and Junior and Roderick."

News About Faith.

"Faith's newest is playing store," she chuckled reminiscently. "I'm afraid I taught her, much to Mother Graham's disgust. She takes all the tin cans from the reserve shelf in the pantry, ranges them along the ledges in the library, then gravely sells them to the members of the household. But she stripped the paper covers from a dozen or more, so now Katie doesn't know what she's opening, and there are other complications."

I laughed, but with misty eyes, and plied her with questions until she had given me what Dicky would call a "round by round" account of the children's sayings and doings. All this was like manna to me, and I did not even think about Georges, or what my father wished Katharine to do in connection with Mary's proposed "accident," until his knock sounded on the door.

"Mr. Gardner has gone," he said, "and if you will come back in, I'd like to plan getting a dinner here for Georges, without anyone knowing he's here."

Custom Breeds Costume

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The other day a peppery gentleman, wearing the symbolic eagle of the Colonel on his shoulder, strolled into a room where a number of junior officers were discussing the war and said: "For Pete's sake, stop; talk about something else, talk about women and how hideous they look in those things they call slacks!"

Goodness only knows who the woman hater was who first designed slacks for women's wear. But Mr. Thomas Brigance, now in the United States Army and a former fashion designer, seems to have at last recognized the error of his ways. When he was a boss of this particular branch of the needle trade, he gave the "view halloo" to slacks early and often. Since he's been in the Army, he has discovered men hate slacks, according to a current publication.

Returning to his native city, Washington, on furlough, Mr. Brigance reports his amazement at discovering that slacks are anathema to doughboys. "When the war is over, I'll be more careful and make only the most feminine clothes for women. I'll work from another point of view. I'll give them the type of clothes men like to see them in."

The last World War produced a strip-tease emergence for women. They shed their long hair, high shoes, high collars, whaleboned corsets, and inhibitions.

These things have so long been taken for granted that we have to reread an old book like F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Beautiful and the Damned," to realize their startling effect at the time when the type was personified by Colleen Moore, in Flaming Youth portrayals.

If "Custom breeds costume," as stylists grant, it's pretty safe to say the slack-wearing fad will not be taken up universally for post-bellum wear. A string-bean type of girl in her early twenties may look cute on a hike, or some informal occasion in slacks, but do you wonder at the middle-aged man in New York who tried to divorce his wife on charges of cruelty the other day? The nature of the cruelty being probed by the wife's attorney, the plaintiff answered: "That old fatty dressed herself in slacks, tied a rag 'round her head and walked into the office where I'm employed."

However, a war production company in St. Louis, Missouri, the Monsanto Chemical company, has adopted a costume with slacks for its women employes, which it declares the workers "will feel perfectly free to wear to and from work." They insist its jacket is expressly designed to conceal what in plump figures is known as "hippiness." But does "hippiness" ever make for happiness, when a woman has a tubby figure?

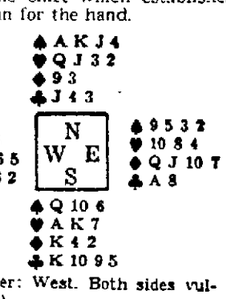
"The Authority on Authorities"

EARLY CARD READING

MOST CARD reading is a gradual process, with some information clear at the time of the first trick and more coming with the play of each additional card. Some of it, though, is immediate—based on the bidding, the opening lead and your first look at the dummy. At least, the important information, which should guide your efforts, becomes clear that early. It can tell you whether to continue the suit which was opened, or to make the shift which establishes your plan for the hand.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	1 NT
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	3 NT

West, who knew South as one addicted to the use of club opening bids on short suits, opened the 2, which gave East a very clear reading—almost certainly exactly four cards, and hence four held by South. Then he studied a bit. If South had as many as four diamonds, he would have opened that touching suit in preference to clubs, and so he doubtless had only three of them, consequently three in each major, else he would have supported one of them.

With East's side having only four clubs, that suit could not produce enough tricks to beat South, so diamonds must be tried, especially since his partner was marked for four cards in the suit. There was a good chance he might have the A, and that South had only three headed by the K. So East won the first trick with his club A and returned the diamond Q. It is easy to see how that settled South's hash, with four tricks in the suit.

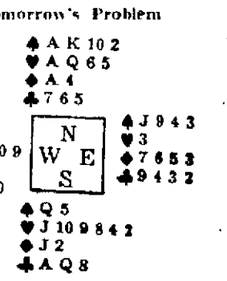
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

After West has stuck in a diamond bid during the auction and then leads the diamond K, how should South play this deal to make a small slam at hearts?

THE BOY FROM MAINE

CHAPTER XXXIII

It was a year and a half later that the market crashed; and in the long aftermath of that event Rosalie's life changed completely. Her own market losses were tremendous, wiping out in two days all her inheritance from Phillip Strange—all that embarrassment of riches. To cover margins her own money also went, and it appeared that there wouldn't be any more where that came from; her father was no better off. During the ensuing years of the depression, his leather factories closed one by one till only the main factory in Brockton was operating, and that only part time.

For Rosalie the culmination of this train of disaster was her father's death in 1932. Although the immediate cause of his death was pneumonia, actually the doctors agreed that it was overwork and worry that had killed him; and this was easy to believe when all the facts of his business came to light. Bailey said to Rosalie, "It's worse than anybody thought—everything mortgaged to the hilt and the banks wouldn't lend him any more. I never saw such a mess as the whole thing's in."

But it interested Bailey, and in the end he was the one who tried to salvage something from the wreckage. This he began to do during the same year, quitting his idle job in Wall Street, and moving Rosalie and Peter to Boston. He took over the management of the factory, and all the woes appertaining to it; he even seemed grateful for the hard work involved. Here was something he could get his teeth into.

They went to live with Rosalie's widowed mother in the Beacon Street house, and here they remained for the next five years They closed up as much of the house as they could, and reduced the staff of servants to one.

The island house was a total loss; they would have sold it for whatever it would bring, but there was no sale. Once in the middle years—sometime during 1934 — Bailey said to Rosalie, "I've got an idea your old friend Hobey Higgins would buy that house, if we offered it to him. He'd love it for sentimental reasons, and I'll bet he'd pay a good price for it. Big radio executives," said Bailey, with one eyebrow raised—"like all brand-new self-made tycoons—can afford to buy nostalgia, and in fact they usually do."

He looked at Rosalie, still quizzically. "What do you say we try him?"

"You're not serious," Rosalie said.

"As a matter of fact I am. I think it's a very good idea."

"I don't," Rosalie said. "I wouldn't dream of it. Of course he'd buy the house—if he knows we're broke, and he probably does. He'd buy it to help us out. Surely, you don't want him to buy it for any such reason as that?—I mean, after all!" Rosalie exclaimed, in real distress. "You've never let me see him since that night on the sidewalk — years ago — you've never even let me send him so much as a Christmas card—and now you want to trade on his old feelings for me, just for the sake of the little money the house might bring! Well, I won't have it," she wound up. "I've never heard of such a thing."

"Dont get excited," Bailey said, looking amused. "I didn't really altogether mean it. I just thought I'd see what you'd say."

"Well, now you know."

Peter was six years old in 1934. He was a dark-haired, dark-eyed little boy, with no resemblance to Rosalie now—he was all Bailey, so exactly Bailey that this replica in miniature amused beholders when the two were seen together. "But thank the Lord he hasn't got my disposition," Bailey sometimes said; and Rosalie would add, "Or mine," with equal fervor. In this one respect their son reminded them of Rosalie's father, who had been almost angelically good-tempered.

This was Peter's second year in a progressive school. It was a private school, and it was almost their only extravagance; and Rosalie went without things herself to achieve it. She didn't know why she felt it was so important, but she did. Later the public schools would do, but Peter seemed so little now.

Sometimes she thought that only Peter made life bearable for all of them; the rest was trouble and anxiety and increasing domestic friction. Bailey had never been fond of Rosalie's mother; she had always bored and irritated him, and now she was ceaselessly on his nerves. Rosalie understood that—there were many times when she felt the same way—but loyalty made her resent it in Bailey nevertheless, and they had a number of quarrels about it, especially when they were tired.

Bailey worked long hours, and came home tired, and after a while came home later and later—or not at all, until very late at night. Detained downtown. Working tonight at the office. Familiar phrases again — with that same sorry jocularity about them. Rosalie didn't believe him, but she accepted his explanations without inquiry or protest, and didn't even bother to check on him — she thought, "Isn't this awful? I really don't even care any more." She said very little to him about it. Once in a great while, when she was feeling especially forlorn, or when for several evenings in a row he hadn't been home, and again wasn't coming—once in a great while then she would demur a little when he telephoned, saying, "Oh, Bailey, not again tonight!" But that wasn't very often . . .

She wondered who the woman was — or the women — but she didn't ask. It would only cause a row, and to no end.

She had a constant sense of sad and bitter disappointment—an undefined unhappiness even on waking to each day, before she was really awake — a kind of spiritual lump in her throat all the time. She thought about life a great deal, her life, and what she had expected of it—as contrasted with the way it was. She thought the things that people think; she thought, It can't go on like this, but she knew it could, and even probably would. She thought resignedly. This is it. This is the way it is. She was grown up. Well, she thought wearily, I suppose it's time.

This feeling of being crushed and beaten down by circumstances—this weariness and resignation, this sense of being too tired to fight—all of this was reflected in the way she looked nowadays, and in the way she dressed. Her clothes were quieter, less smart, more serviceable—undistinguished clothes. They were clothes that didn't want to be noticed—uncompetitive; they were almost like protective coloring. There were shadows under her eyes, and her skin looked a little sallow these days, and she herself looked older.

She was aware of these things, vaguely; sometimes she frightened herself by catching unexpected glimpses of herself in mirrors—she was still shapely; nothing ever changed her figure, and she would always be meticulous about the little details, so that the image wasn't sloppy, or dowdy; those were not the words. It was just neat and unsensational and drab—that was the word, she felt. Once she said scathingly to her mirror, "I look like somebody's poor relation in a movie."

And how did you snap out of it, feeling no impetus? For whom did you snap out of it? It had to be for somebody—Bailey wouldn't even notice any more. And there was no one else. I ought to find somebody else, she sometimes thought, and try to fall in love with him, at least a little. That would snap me out of this. But things like that belonged to another kind of life than the kind hers had become. She went out very little socially, met few new people; and with those few she did meet, she was quiet and even almost shy, feeling so unattractive and inadequate and insecure.

She had never blamed Bailey for their poverty, or for her own market losses; but if she had constantly rebuked him, especially on the latter score, he could not have been more touchy about it than he was. She had learned to dread the necessity of mentioning money to him at all—even asking for ten dollars to pay the grocery store—because any discussion of money seemed to lead them, despite all her efforts, to a point where Bailey could say, "I know, I know! If I hadn't lost your money in the market . . ." Sometimes he would even go so far as to say savagely, "Do you have to bring that up again?"

"You're not fair!" Rosalie would cry passionately. "I never brought it up, never. Never even once. You're the one who brings it up, and you put thoughts in my mind that aren't there — and never were there—and words in my mouth. I swear I don't feel the way you think I feel about that money, Bailey. I don't regret it; I don't even think about it—it's gone; I've forgotten it. It never was really mine anyway, because it was Phil's and I didn't deserve it. So for you to keep on accusing me of nagging you because it's gone—"

"You liked it pretty damn well when you had it."

"We all liked it pretty damn well when we had it. This is a new era. After all, Bailey, we're not the only people who've lost what we had. Why can't we be good sports about it? I could at least try to be—if you'd only let me."

But nothing worked with him.

"Sometimes I think you hate me," Rosalie told him once.

"Be careful," Bailey said. "You give yourself away. That's a reflection of the way you feel about me—when you say that. You've just reversed it."

Two years, then three . . . then five, since they had moved to Boston. One year was like another year, and nothing improved much. She was long past the point where she expected any change. Now it was 1937, and it was early August, and Bailey said to her, "You've got a birthday coming up here—and we ought to have a party. I think I'll take you out and whirl you around town." She was pleased and surprised that he remembered—even though her thought was, don't remind me. She said ruefully, "Be sure you whirl me fast enough so I forget what birthday it is."

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Feb. 20.

Generally adverse astral operations are noted in this day's astrological set-up. The signs indicate depressing, difficult and dangerous circumstances. It may require sound consideration and common sense to make any definite headway. With sagacity and assistance from secret corporations or public influence there may be advantages.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year demanding much sound judgment. A wild indulgence in tempestuous, erratic and emotional conduct might prove disastrous and have troublesome reactions on the physical well-being and that of the family. A sane and balanced attitude toward impediments may save the day.

A child born on this day should be given early attention to its health and disposition to equip it for sharp barbs of fate. Train it in optimism and fortitude.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—When England was in danger of invasion in the summer of 1940, every householder and every housewife was instructed how to deal with enemy parachutists who might suddenly appear in the back yard.

Now, I think we need to instruct ourselves in how to watch out for another kind of parachute attack that may be coming down in our midst at any time—not a parachutist armed with a carbine or a machine gun, but the more insidious parachutist known as the peace feeler. You can't see him come down. He is mysterious, like the gremlins, and hides in your newspaper and in your radio. Because of the way the war is going, he is apt to pop out at any time, looking harmless and friendly.

Clapper

The first thing to keep in mind about these peace feelers is that they are not intended to help us. Their purpose is to help the enemy, no matter how harmless they sound. When the enemy faces military defeat, he will try to talk his way out of it. He will conduct a talk offensive to evade the full consequences of defeat.

Germany asked for an armistice last time, and got it about at once thereafter, with her war industry intact, to prepare for the next World war—through methods described in "Germany's Master Plan," the story of the German industrial offensive, by Joseph Borkin and Charles A. Welsh. Peace overtures are the form of the enemy strategy of war, a request for a breathing spell during which new diplomatic and military action can be planned, and industrial weaknesses overcome.

An analysis which I have seen on the technique of peace offensives classifies peace feelers in several categories. The enemy usually has at least one peace offensive in operation as a part of systematic psychological and military warfare. The purpose may be to test morale and opinion among the people of the United Nations, or to weaken the fighting spirit of the United Nations, or to distract attention from the hard necessities of the war, to confuse opinion by encouraging division and pacifist sentiment, to split the war aims and effort of the United Nations; to keep alive false hope of an easy peace, or finally to keep a line out for real peace negotiations when actual military disaster appears inevitable.

Rumors of friction between various ruling groups in Germany or Italy or Japan should be interpreted as propaganda moves. One purpose is to promote the impression that reasonable groups exist within the Axis countries with whom the United Nations might make a lasting and reasonable peace. If any such groups actually exist you may be certain that those now in control would regard them only as puppets through which to work.

What is the difference between Hitler and his generals? So far as we are concerned, none. The old imperialists don't differ from the new ones. The crowd around the kaiser was out for the same domination that the present crowd has attempted. There may be differences in technique, but none in the common aim of making Germany the master nation.

From now on an early peace favors the Axis leaders. They want to hold as much as they can of what they have. The longer the war goes, the more they stand to lose. That is why they will try to undermine by clever peace maneuvers the unconditional-surrender demand announced at Casablanca.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

WASHINGTON The labor question, which may have become a great bore to many of us in the last few years, is no longer a problem of mere unionism or nonunionism, of protected graft and racketeering and seditious sabotage by the Communists. It is now a question affecting the freedom of every American and anyone who drowses off like a trail-weary trapper in a blizzard may wake up in chains.

Pegler

We are coming to conscription of labor by means of a law which had no such intention and apparently to mass bankruptcy through taxation and the ultimate dependency of the noncombatant civilian population on the state. Never mind, for the moment, whether civilians conscripted for war work in factories and on the farms shall be compelled to join unions and pay taxes to these irresponsible and, many cases, horribly corrupt or disloyal subgovernments. Some will have to and some won't.

At the moment it appears that those men who refuse to join in closed-shop plants and who are otherwise subject to the military draft will be taken for combat as punishment for their refusal, contrary to the intent of the selective service act and without authority from congress.

But those who may be drafted for war work are not covered by any moratorium on any of their responsibilities. If a man has a mortgage on his home negotiated in time of peace with a prudent ratio to his income, his interest must be paid out of his reduced earnings and the local taxes on his place continue. Moreover his last year's income tax must be paid on time out of these reduced earnings plus the new victory tax and, later in this year, some pay-as-you-go tax will be imposed on his factory wages for 1943.

Combat men have the protection of a moderate moratorium. If they have savings, war bonds or other good assets, they must shower down on the income-tax due dates unless they be overseas and busy fighting Germans and Japanese.

The conscribed civilian worker, however, has no protection. Assuming that he is squeezed out of a nondeferable job as an office executive in New York, where there is not much war industry, and assigned to a work-or-fight job, in, say Toledo, at one-fourth of his accustomed income, he must nevertheless, find money to support his family at home, maintain himself in Toledo, and pay all his taxes, past and current, on time.

And if the Wadsworth-Austin bill becomes the labor-conscription law, superseding the devious resort to the military service act, able-bodied males above the war draft age and up to 65, and with liberal exceptions, women from 18 to 50, may be conscribed for work, still with no provision for any tax moratorium. Congress, of course, may adopt some law forgiving, abating or postponing, without interest, the federal tax liability of such labor conscripts, but there has been no suggestion of that up to now. The treasury has thus far resisted the Ruml plan to set the clock forward one year as to all income taxation.

If anything is to be done about a tax moratorium for conscript workers, it must be done by congress, not the treasury, but subject, of course, to the urging of the treasury's social and political purposes which always are injected into the programs.

There may be no alternative to labor conscription, but the fact remains that the people have not been allowed to judge for themselves whether there is or not. They are asked to believe it is necessary and to accept conscription from a congress which lacks the courage and honesty to obliterate these union privileges.

Congress just nags the subject, with small bills slightly hedging the powers of the unions here and there, although the close future threatens not only the eight or nine million willing and captive union members but all Americans.

How does it threaten them?

The middle class can be broken by taxation, losing homes, savings and investments, scattered and, disorganized. And, after a few years a total population accustomed to discipline and dependency, enforced by favor and threat of combat service under one plan, and fine or imprisonment under the other, will be no fit defenders of the civilian freedom that the fighting men left in their cares.

LAUNCH PROBE OF ALL STATE LIQUOR STORES

State Officials Seek to Bare Further Favoritism and 'Back Door' Sales.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — A state-wide investigation of retail liquor stores was under way today as Governor Bricker challenged all persons with knowledge of favoritism or illegal "back door" sales by liquor department personnel to report such information to the state liquor control department.

Acting State Liquor Director Don Fisher authorized his seven district supervisors to close any or all retail stores in the state liquor monopoly if they believe such action to be necessary, disclosures of "back door" sales by Basil O. Keller, manager of a Cleveland liquor store.

Keller admitted the illegal sales and resigned.

Wholesale closing of retail outlets appeared unlikely.

"We will not close the state liquor stores," Bricker said. "They will continue to do business," he said when informed of suggestions that all state stores be closed pending completion of an investigation.

"The liquor department, with very few exceptions, has been free of debauchery and mal-administration. All kinds of stories and rumors have been circulated about the state liquor department. Most of them have proved to be untrue," Bricker said.

"And in many cases they obviously were started by persons with a selfish interest," he added, refusing to elaborate.

Fisher moved quickly to order the investigation when the Cleveland case developed, telephoning instructions to agents in six cities including James W. Casner, Canton.

"We have had complaints of this nature before, but this is the first time that any such complaint has been substantiated," Fisher said.

Prior to establishment of a rationing system last month, permit holders had complained that preference was shown certain permit holders by wholesale outlets, Fisher said, but since rationing complaints about the wholesale outlets had stopped.

FARM BUREAU'S BUSINESS RISES

Reports at Annual Meeting Show Increase of 14.1 Per Cent in Year.

Volume of business of the Richland County Farm Bureau Cooperative association showed an increase of 14.1 per cent in 1942, reaching a total of $852,200, stockholders of the organization were told yesterday at their annual meeting in the First Methodist church. The increase for the year was $105,413.

One new director, J. R. Lawrence of Washington township, was elected and another director, G. H. Culler of Monroe township, was re-elected to the board. Directors will elect officers at a meeting March 3.

Addressing the group, Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, urged farmers to work for ownership of production facilities and to attempt to correct the misunderstanding between labor and agriculture.

W. E. Stough, Springfield township, president of the county cooperative, was in charge of the meeting. Also appearing on the program was County Agent George B. Ganyard.

Approximately 250 shareholders attended, more than the attendance at meetings in recent years.

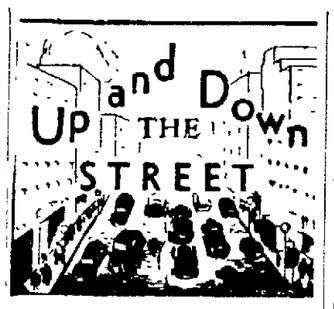
COLD FAILS TO HALT SHIP WORK

Minesweeper To Be Launched at Lorain Tomorrow.

LORAIN —(AP)— Wintry weather is not halting minesweeper construction at Great Lakes shipyards.

The American Shipbuilding company is launching at its Black river yards here tomorrow noon the first of a group of 180-foot minesweepers. The ship will be christened the U. S. S. Jubilant.

Earlier this week, Lake Erie ice had to be chopped away to permit launching of a minesweeper at a Cleveland yards. American Ship Building company officials said this would not be necessary here as the river is virtually free of ice.



If feminine company means anything, the party the Knights of Columbus are arranging tomorrow night for the naval aviation cadets stationed at Mansfield airport, ought to be a success. The Knights expect 30 cadets, and some 75 Mansfield girls have volunteered to help entertain them. The party, at the lodge home, will start at 8, and will feature Monte Carlo and dancing. Arrangements are in charge of a committee headed by F. M. Bunsey as chairman, and assisted by a committee from the Daughters of Isabella, headed by Mrs. John Daley and Mrs. Ray Straub.

County Treasurer Charles Payne has found that it paid dividends to move the real estate tax collections up so it will be completed before the March 15 income tax deadline. By comparison, real estate taxes generally are so much lighter than this year's income tax that most property owners don't mind their customary county tax payments so much this time, Payne said. "Then they add that they wish Uncle Sam would let them off as easy." Real estate taxes are due March 10, while last year the collection ran to March 20, five days after the income tax date.

Police report a lessening of prowling reports since the arrest 10 days ago of an Oakenwaldt avenue young man who admitted ransacking the garage of a Park Way drive residence.

FIND 'DOUBLE' GOT PENSIONS

Jurors Convict Man Who Posed as Ohioan to Obtain Veteran's Income.

(By Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla. — Two men of marked resemblance, similar scars, and able to recite almost identical early life histories, stood before a United States district court yesterday and claimed the name and World war pension rights of John W. Spanglehour but only one man had fingerprints that tallied with enlistment papers.

After nearly a full day of hearing each claimant testify, the jury deliberated an hour and returned a verdict finding the claimant who also said he adopted the name Jay James Cummings in show business guilty on eight counts of making false claims in receiving a veteran's pension.

E. S. Deiss, FBI fingerprint expert, testified that only John William Spanglehour of Sandusky, O., had fingerprints that checked with World war one enlistment papers.

The other claimant to the Spanglehour name lives at St. Petersburg, Fla. He said he used the Cummings name in show business but that both his and his father's name was John Wesley Spanglehour.

Federal Judge Alexander Akerman said he would sentence Cummings today. He could impose a 12-month prison term on each of the eight counts.

The man upheld as Spanglehour by the jury said he missed his discharge papers in 1935 and in 1937 learned someone was going under his name and receiving his compensation. His application for duplicate papers in Sandusky led to government investigation.

FEAR HIGHER TOLL IN CRASH OF HUGE PLANE

12 Known Dead After Fortress Smashes Into Packing House at Seattle.

BULLETIN

SEATTLE—(U.P.)—One fireman was killed today and five others were overcome by gas released when fire broke out again at a meat packing plant where 12 persons were believed killed in yesterday's crash of a four-motored bombing plane.

(By International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash. — Fire that developed in one engine of a four-motored Flying Fortress during a test flight was blamed today by Boeing Aircraft officials for the crash of the huge craft into a Seattle packing plant yesterday in which at least 12 persons were killed.

All 11 members of the plane's crew, including Edmund T. Allen, famed Boeing test pilot, lost their lives in the crash, and one plant employe was known to have perished in the flames that followed as the bomber's fuel tanks exploded and spread death and destruction throughout the building.

There was fear that the death toll would rise to 14. Of the eight bodies recovered, six were identified and it was believed others were those of plant workers.

Thirteen persons, including firemen and plane employes, were injured by the blaze and company officials said 12 workers were unaccounted for. It was believed, however, that many of the missing had reached safety.

Witnesses said the plane, its two port motors dead and trailing smoke, was attempting to reach the Boeing field for a crash landing when it struck power lines and then smashed into the plant slaughter house.

Four crew members attempted to parachute from the stricken plane, but the craft was too low and there was not time for their chutes to open.

Besides Allen, the Boeing company listed the following men as members of the plane's crew:

Robert Maxfield, Fritz Mohn, Robert Dansfield, Barclay Henshaw, Vincent North, Thomas Lankford, Ray Basel, Charles Blaine, Harry Ralston and Edward Wersebe.

The other known victim was Gus Holbrook, identified as a foreman at the packing plant.

Keglers from the big city lanes will be taking over Colony alleys this week-end in the Moose state tournament, but that shouldn't frighten present pace setters too much.

Looking over the list of entries from Cleveland and Toledo, tourney Manager Art Hilborn fails to find any galaxy of outstanding stars who might be expected to take the board by storm. They'll all be in there trying to better their handicap, even as most of the rest of the kindling collectors in the joust.

Art reports there's a C. Mattingly from Toledo due for action this week-end, but he doesn't know which C. Mattingly it is, since there are two of them, father and son, and both are good keglers. One is secretary of the Toledo association.

Entries closed in the Inter-City tournament Tuesday night, but announcement on the number of teams in Ohio's biggest pin event is not yet ready for the palpitating public.

Some of the entries need a little more checking before the exact figure is known.

But, it's no secret that there will be close to 300 teams in the tournament.

And the Inter-City board of directors hoped, but faintly, to draw only 150 teams this year with the transportation situation as it is.

There's a little sad news from Tiffin for Mansfield keglerettes who boarded the train for Mansfield last Sunday night holding first place in two divisions of the northwest Ohio women's handicap tournament.

Seems that before they got home, even, they had lost the lead in all-events.

Hazel Hilborn, who was topping the all-events with a mark of 1680, was pushed right off the board when three gals broke 1700 Sunday night.

Helen Goff, Toledo, chalked up 1769, M. Myers, Toledo, 1762, and H. Cook, Findlay, 1708.

But Arlene Peters, the Mansfield Provident Loan softballer, still leads the way in singles with 638, with Dorothy Holden, Toledo, second at 630, and Kate Cheney, Mansfield, third, at 610.

Florence Handwark and Mary Dintaman of Mansfield are still second in doubles with 1142, back of 1218 posted by I. Schilling and E. Kahlo of Lima.

In team standings, Kay's Shoppe is third with 2657 and Hergatt Lettering fourth with 2640 Nudging into second place after the Mansfielders left town was Dedrick Shell Oil of Tiffin with 2693 Eichen Lutz Realtors of Toledo lead with 2799

Illini Faces Badgers In Big Ten Feature.

By TOMMY DeVINE

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— Undefeated Illinois seeks to cement its claim to a place among the greatest basketball teams in Big Ten history tomorrow night when it faces Wisconsin at Champaign, Ill., in the feature contest of a conference schedule.

In other games Indiana attempts to keep alive its dimmed title chances when it entertains Minnesota at Bloomington, Northwestern faces Chicago at Chicago, Michigan tangles with Ohio State at Columbus and Iowa meets Purdue at Lafayette.

Illinois went into undisputed possession of the league lead Monday night when it won its ninth consecutive game To stay there the proteges of Coach Doug Mills must beat Wisconsin, the team that enabled them to grab the top spot. The Badgers topped previously undefeated Indiana in their last start.

Early in the season Illinois downed Wisconsin 52 to 40 and is favored to repeat, but not by any wide margin. The Badgers are far stronger than they were at the outset of the campaign. They've won five of their last six games.

The Illinois-Wisconsin encounter brings together two of the best offensive players now active in collegiate circles, Andy Phillip and Johnny Kotz. Their individual performances likely will go a long ways toward deciding the issue.

Indiana is the choice to handle Minnesota easily. Although their perfect season's record was punctured, the Hoosiers retain a championship change. Indiana plays 13 league games against 12 for Illinois. That schedule quirk would give the Hoosiers a percentage advantage if they swept their remaining games and Illinois happened to slip once.

Northwestern, battling for a third place finish, gets a "complimentary" victory when it meets Chicago. The Maroons go into the game with 36 consecutive Big Ten defeats on their record.

Purdue is favored over Iowa and Ohio State over Michigan in games involving second division teams.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference, said today a group of college presidents had advised army officials to take a stand against participation in intercollegiate athletics

He said the action was taken by a few university heads who "don't like college athletics," and that it was followed up by last week's announcement by army officials that university men trained for the army in colleges would not have time to compete in intercollegiate athletics.

* * *

"These college presidents present arguments against intercollegiate sport which are unclear," Major Griffith observed. "For instance, they refer to a transportation problem. Recently two of our Big Ten teams played a basketball game on a night when the temperature stood at zero There were 14,000 spectators there and most of them walked to the field house.

* * *

"What is there wrong with these people going out to watch two teams of boys perform? What is there wrong in these boys playing?"

* * *

Griffith said it had been his experience that in all college faculties there were some professors fond of athletics some completely against sports and others who didn't much care one way or the other

"It's the same way in the army and navy," Griffith declared.

Urges Shifting Of Hambletonian

ORLANDO, Fla (AP)— Talk of shifting the Hambletonian, termed the Kentucky Derby of Harness racing, to North Randall near Cleveland was renewed by a veteran trainer here.

Ben White, training Volo Song, two-year-old trotter picked by horsemen here as the No 1 favorite to win the 1943 Hambletonian, said he believed the annual classic would be transferred from Goshen, N. Y., to the Cleveland track, if present travel restrictions continued.

Commenting on the harness racing outlook in general, White added:

"We are going right ahead with plans for a lot of racing this year—there probably will be longer meetings at fewer places, and most of the racing will be done in Ohio."

* * *

Ohio fair managers at their annual convention in Columbus, O., last month indicated they would hold more harness meets than last year, unless unusual transportation difficulties developed The only grand circuit event in that state last year was at Delaware and fair officials there have announced plans to continue this year Outstanding races also have been scheduled at Greenville, O. A meet at Marion, O., also has been rumored.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Georgetown's Huge Short will go into the army next week without getting a chance to show his recordbreaking 1943 form before his schoolmates . . . The only hoyas who have seen him in action are Coach Hap Hardell and the members of the mile relay team . . . The Big Ten colleges likely will schedule football games against service teams next fall on the same basis as last year—if there are any service teams . . . When Pitt's basketball team wound up its home season against Carnegie the other night, Doc Carlson rushed out on the floor to kiss the senior players when he put in the subs, and had a technical foul called against him.

Primo Called Too Awkward

Didn't Take Louis Long To Stop Him.

By JAMES J. JOHNSTON
(AP Features)

Gene Tunney, master of all he could survey in boxing, retired in 1928 as the undefeated champion, the first ever to permanently retire as an unconquered title-holder. In the short period of the next nine years, boxing had six heavyweight kings.

There was a quick scramble for Tunney's laurels, culminating in a title match between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling. Sharkey was outpointing the German when a claim of foul was allowed and the crown awarded to Schmeling.

As match-maker for Madison Square Garden, I arranged their return bout in the Garden's Long Island arena. After 15 rounds of indifferent fighting, in which Schmeling—a too cautious competitor—should have won by a kayo several times, Sharkey was declared the champion.

Joe Louis, at his peak, would have knocked out both Sharkey and Schmeling on their best days. As it happened, he kayoed both of them after they had passed their prime.

Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp from Italy, won the crown from Sharkey. For the first four rounds Sharkey—who had beaten Carnera a year previously—was all over Primo, the fifth was a bit in favor of the Italian. Then, in the sixth, Carnera started whaling away at Sharkey and a short right hand uppercut to the chin knocked Sharkey out.

Sharkey was clever and a fair puncher, but Carnera didn't show me any reason to believe he could beat Louis. He was too big and clumsy, with only a fair smattering of boxing ability. It didn't take Louis long to dispose of him when they met later.

From out of the west once more came a remarkable man, Max Baer, a boxer who had everything in his make-up but a fighting heart I matched him against Carnera for the title and Baer must have knocked Primo down a dozen times before the fight was finally stopped in the eleventh round with Baer as the new champion.

CAN'T KEEP CENTERS ON VIRGINIA TEAMS

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—(AP)—Two things have bothered University of Virginia athletic teams this year—transportation and centers.

Coach Frank Murray used six players—H. H. Uihlein, F. N. Crenshaw, K. F. Bevan, jr., J. W. Reardon, Milton Parlow, and Charles Cooper—at the pivot post during football season. Billy Suhling, the team's regular center, joined the armed forces before the season began.

The other day, Virginia's basketball coach, Gus Tebell, announced that the Cavaliers' No. 1 pivot man, Walter St. Clair, had dropped out of the lineup because of scholastic difficulties.

Bulldogs Win Third Cage Title

Simpson Takes 7-Point Victory Over Pioneers.

JOHN SIMPSON Bulldogs continued their undefeated reign in Mansfield junior high school basketball yesterday afternoon when they scored their sixth straight victory, and second of the season, over Johnny Appleseed hoopsters at the Pioneer gym.

However the season has brought a tightening up of the rivalry between the two schools, Simpson having won the first game by nine points and taking yesterday's tilt by seven points, 26-19.

Pioneers kept threatening throughout yesterday's game, but couldn't quite pass the Bulldogs, bringing the margin down to one point midway in the second period at 7-8.

Simpson, after taking a 6-3 lead in the first period, scored a couple of quick buckets late in the second to lead at the half 12-7. The Bulldogs clinched the championship in the third stanza with a 10-4 margin making it 22-11, but Pioneers, fighting back, made it interesting by an 8-4 advantage in the final heat.

Ollie Cline, cool 8th grade captain, paced the Bulldogs with 13 points, while Glasscock kept Appleseed in the ball game with 11.

Appleseed now has hopes of breaking the spell in the next two years, based on the seventh grade championship won by the Pioneers. The Appleseed victory reported in yesterday's paper was in a seventh grade game, and was the second of the season for the Pioneer yearlings. It was erroneously reported as a 9th grade tilt, due to the fact that the box score turned in to The News-Journal did not designate which grade the players represented.

Phillies Sold to Unnamed Syndicate

PHILADELPHIA — (U.P.) — The Philadelphia Phils had been sold today to an unnamed syndicate but the National League retained temporary control while final details were being settled.

"We have told this group that the ball club is theirs," League President Ford Frick revealed after formally taking over the Phils' stock from Gerry Nugent.

He refused to disclose the identity of the new owners, saying an announcement would be made within a week.

William B. Cox, New York lumber company executive, was believed to head the syndicate. Cox and John B. Kelly, Philadelphia Democratic leader, had been known to be bidding for the franchise but Kelly said the league had not advised him of acceptance of his offer.

Cox, who owns the New York Yankees of the suspended American football league, was said to be associated in the Phils' deal with three prominent Philadelphias, Lieut. W. Potter Wear, Capt. G. Herbert Walker, jr., and Cummins Catherwood.

Frick named a temporary board of directors to handle club business until the sale is completed.

Scots Cop Firm Grip On Second

Wooster Wins Sixth Conference Victory.

WOOSTER college's basketball squad today took a firm grip on second place in the current Ohio conference cage race by recording a 59 to 45 victory over Findlay. It was the Scots' sixth victory in league play against one defeat. Toledo leads the circuit with four wins against no losses.

The Bishops came from behind in the third quarter to force the game into extra minutes, regulation play ending with the score tied at 48-all on two baskets by Clyde Helsinger, Otterbeir freshman, in the last two minutes.

Otterbein gained a 53 to 51 lead in the first overtime but Dick Taravella, Wesleyan sophomore, dropped in two free throws to make it 53-all. In the final overtime, the Bishops got two baskets and two free throws but Otterbein topped them with four baskets and one free throw.

SETS PRICES ON VEGETABLE CROP

War Board Tells Ohio Farmers They'll Be Paid Well For Growing Food.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Ohio farmers planning to grow tomatoes, peas, sweet corn and snap beans—the four major canning crops—are assured minimum fair prices for their 1943 production by the Ohio U. S. Department of Agriculture War board.

Elmer F. Kruse, war board chairman, announced that the Commodity Credit corporation will purchase the output of processors who agree to pay growers, as a minimum, the prices stipulated by the war board and who are certified by the board. The government then will resell to such canners at a discount.

Specified minimum prices which canners are required to pay farmers in order to be eligible for certification include:

Tomatoes — $22 per ton flat; snap beans, $80 per ton, sweet corn, $17 a ton; green peas, $64.90 a ton.

Kruse described the canning crop support program as the U. S Department of Agriculture's first step to assist farmers in producing sufficient quantities of vegetables to keep canning and dehydrating plants operating at full capacity.

Prices to processors to be paid by CCC for their output have not been announced, but Kruse asserted that the government purchase price will be sufficient to permit canners to pay the grower specified minimum prices.

Gardening for Victory

With Fertilizers Off to War, Planting Needs Greater Care

By ROBERT GEIGER
(AP Features Writer)

Fertilizers are so scare this year that precious nitrogen preparations have been put up in several packages and labeled "For Victory Gardens or Food Production Only."

They are especially for the city Victory gardeners but the U. S. Department of Agriculture asks that they be purchased only when well rotted leafmold or animal fertilizers are not available in sufficient quantities.

Fifth In a Series

Nitrogen is a necessity in manufacturing ammunition and although it was commonly available before the war in a five per cent mixture with 10 per cent phophoric acid and five per cent potash, the percentage of nitrogen this year has been cut to three per cent phosphoric acid and seven per cent potash.

Department of Agriculture experts say this new mixture is satisfactory for vegetable gardens but they add that extra care should be taken in preparing the garden tracts for planting.

Special Suggestions.

Here are the department's special 1943 suggestions for Victory Gardeners:

Have your ground plowed, if at all possible, otherwise spade it to a depth of about 10 inches if the topsoil is deep. Gardens with thin layers of top soil should not be turned so deeply

If well rotted leafmold, horse or cow manure or other decayed organic matter is available, work in about one bushel to each 25 square feet or 20 tons to an acre.

Work the ground, with a rake, into fine condition Break the clods and remove stones or trash.

The ground should be reworked and smoothed with a rake just before each row is planted

Commercial fertilizer is best when applied beside the garden rows in a band about three or four inches wide and about two inches from the line where the seeds will be sown or the plants set. Scoop out a furrow, with a hoe, about two inches deep. The fertilizer should be spread uniformly in the furrow, mixed with soil and the trench covered The fertilizer should not touch the seed.

KNEE-ACTION PLANTING—The proper technique includes a cord for straight furrows, a shallow furrow for small seeds, and a board to kneel upon.

Furrow-Placing best.

Broadcasting is an easier method of applying fertilizer than placing it in furrows but results are less efficient.

The 3-8-7 fertilizer mixture is applied at the rate of one pound per 25 feet of row, when rows are two feet apart If broadcast it is applied three or four pounds per 100 square feet and then mixed with the soil

As for tools, a small garden needs only a spade, or spading fork, a steel rake, a common hoe and a strong cord. Other tools are luxuries.

The cord is stretched from stakes at either end of the rows, to make a straight planting line. This line of plants, in neat order, improves the garden's appearance and makes it easier to cultivate.

A garden hose should be kept at hand if running water is available. In east of drought in areas where rain normally is sufficient for growing gardens the hose may save the garden's life

WHOLESALERS, HERE ARE POINT RATION RULES

Maximum Allowable Inventory To Be Established Month After System Operates.

(Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles describing the procedure for registration and the use of War Ration Book 2 by various groups of the population.)

The office of price administration described today how wholesalers will be affected by point rationing, which goes into effect March 1.

Before rationing begins the wholesaler must obtain an official table of point values to post in his establishment. Wholesalers will not register or establish a maximum allowable inventory until approximately one month after rationing begins, and thereafter will report monthly All wholesalers must open point bank accounts

During the retail "freeze" period—the week of Feb. 21—current restrictions on canners and wholesalers will be lifted, so that the wholesaler may receive and make unlimited deliveries. This will be the wholesalers' last opportunity to stock up on processed foods without surrendering points

Wholesalers will operate during the first month of rationing on the basis of the stocks of processed foods they have. A wholesaler must receive from his customers points equal to the point value of the items sold, as listed in the official table of point values. These points may be in the form of stamps, certificates, or ration checks. Stamps and certificates must be deposited in the bank account within 20 days of the last date of validity

Prior to the time of wholesaler registration, he must determine his "gross point inventory," "net point inventory," and his "allowable inventory." He will determine the gross point inventory by adding the point value of all processed foods on hands, points in the bank and undeposited points on hand, the point value of processed foods in transit to his establishment and points which have been transferred to the supplier for which merchandise has not yet been shipped

From the sum of these items he will deduct points on hand for which he has not yet shipped or delivered merchandise which has been ordered. This will give him his net point inventory.

The wholesaler will determine his maximum allowable inventory by multiplying the point value of all processed foods sold or transferred by his establishments, other than to his own wholesale establishments, during the first ration period, by a factor which will be announced by OPA.

If the wholesaler's net point inventory is larger than his maximum allowable inventory, he must cancel out the difference by sending a certified ration check made out to the OPA with his registration form. If he does not have enough points in the bank to send the check with his registration form, he may wait and send it later However, he cannot buy any processed foods until this has been done.

If the wholesaler's net point inventory is smaller than his allowable inventory, he may apply for a certificate on his registration form, equal to the difference.

Before the tenth day of each month the wholesaler must send to OPA in care of the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C. and inventory report.

LOWER SLANT CONTINUED BY STOCK MARKET

Leaders Dip Fractionally, But U. S. Steel Manages Slight Climb.

By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly lower prices continued in today's early stock market proceedings.

Off fractions at a fairly active opening were Bethlehem, General Electric, Radio Corp., Standard Oil (NJ), Glenn Martin, Johns-Manville, Woolworth and Sears Roebuck. A shade higher were U. S. Steel and Public Service of N. J.

Boardrooms found some encouragement in the Dun & Bradstreet survey placing this week's retail spending throughout the nation at 20 to 25 per cent above the like 1942 period although February normally is one of the dullest months.

Confirmation was provided by the Federal Reserve board which estimated last week's department store sales, on a country-wide basis, topped the comparable time a year ago by 45 per cent.

U. S. TANKS HALT ROMMEL THRUST AT LINE CENTER

British Armies Put Squeeze on Axis Forces From North and South.

toy last Sunday, were reported fleeing along the narrow coastal corridor.

With the Germans apparently falling back in all haste toward the Dnieper river--under hammering assault by the Red army's "wild greatness," as Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels termed it --Soviet headquarters reported fresh triumphs along a 400-mile front.

Bitter winds and snowstorms added to the misery of the fleeing Nazis.

The Russian command said Red army troops captured 60 towns and villages, killed 1,000 Axis soldiers and took 1,500 prisoners in the westward drive from Rostov, while in the Caucasus the remnants of some 200,000 Nazis were pinned tighter against the coast.

In the western air war, the RAF's huge bombers thundered back to the attack on Wilhelmshaven, German naval base, and other Allied planes strafed rail lines in France and Belgium and shipping off the coast.

The London air ministry said the attack on Wilhelmshaven was "heavy" and carried out in good weather. Seven planes were listed as missing.

Axis U-Boat Base Blasted By RAF

LONDON —(U.P.)— Britain's biggest bombers smashed at the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven last night in their campaign to cripple Axis U-boat nests.

Two and four-ton block buster demolition bombs and thousands of incendiaries were rained on the docks and shipyards of the great northwest German port in a thunderbolt saturation raid.

The attack was the second in eight nights on Wilhelmshaven. In the interval, the bomber command made three heavy attacks on Lorient, the biggest Axis U-boat base on the French Atlantic coast, and three assaults on inland German cities.

Reds Outflank Nazis On Black Sea Coast

NEW YORK—(INS)—Russian troops have landed on the Black sea coast of the northern Caucasus and outflanked Axis forces at Novorossisk, the British radio declared today in a broadcast heard by CBS.

The British report said the Axis-held port had been outflanked from the northwest, which would mean that the Soviet landing forces had gone ashore north of Novorossisk and blocked the way to the Kerch peninsula.

E-Boat Sunk As It Attacks Convoy

LONDON—(INS)—The admiralty today announced that one Axis E-boat had been destroyed and a second damaged in an unsuccessful attack yesterday against a British convoy in the North Sea.

Neither the Allied convoy nor the British destroyers Garth and Montrose which engaged the enemy at close range suffered any casualties.

There was poor visibility at sea at the time of the clash.

Spanish General to Visit United States

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Considerable interest was aroused in diplomatic circles in Washington today by the disclosure that Spanish Generalissimo Francisco Franco is sending one of his leading pro-Allied generals on a visit to this country.

The Spanish embassy confirmed reports that Gen. Juan Beigbeder, a member of the Spanish general staff and former foreign minister, will arrive in the United States within a few days.

Goebbels Speech Seen As Sympathy Bid

BERN, Switzerland —(U.P.)— The alarmist address by German Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels on "danger for the west" was interpreted here today as an open appeal at a late date for the support and sympathy of the world for Nazi Germany, falling back every day before the armies of Soviet Russia.

Goebbels, in his speech broadcast from Berlin yesterday included the United States and Great Britain when he addressed himself, in his own words, to "world opinion."

He refrained from attacking those countries as enemies and concentrated criticism on their alliance with Russia and against any belief they could cope with Bolshevism after the war.

This thesis was expounded on the heels of daily efforts by the Nazi press since the Casablanca conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill to suggest a rift between Soviet Russia and the United States and Britain.

The consistency of this campaign led foreign diplomatic observers to conclude it was a definite part of Nazi strategy to try to weaken the determination of the Anglo-Saxons to carry their offensive to the continent of Europe.

A series of peace rumors in the smaller nations of the Axis coalition also may be a part of this campaign, they said.

Goebbels' declaration that a serious military situation existed on the eastern front was accepted by foreign observers as the pressing reason for the theme of the speech.

LAST CHANCE

See Eclipse Tonight, or You Won't For Two Years.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Ohioans will have their last chance in more than two years to view a partial eclipse of the moon shortly after midnight tonight.

Dr. J. J. Nassau of the observatory at the Case School of Applied Science, said that nearly all the moon's surface will dim to a coppery blue shortly after midnight. Later it will brighten as the earth's shadow blots out the sun rays.

ROMMEL HURLS 'SUNDAY PUNCH'

Yanks Face Everything Nazis Can Hand Out, Withdraw Without Fear or Panic.

roam the plains of the Sbeitla-Feriana valley tonight and the sleepless French and American guards watch from the hills overlooking the yellow acres dotted with blossoming almond trees, green olive groves and spiky cactus.

As one who has slept and eaten in the field for almost two months of steadily more successful operations with every branch of the American army, I had my first opportunity to see how they reacted when the going really got tough.

Well, here's the way one infantryman summed it up after plodding 15 miles cross-country at night:

"That means it will take us another week more now to win the war. But every week I have spent away from the United States because of those kraut hounds makes me just that much sorer at them."

The withdrawal was orderly and without any signs of panic.

It began two nights ago and continued as American tank, artillery and infantry forces held the Germans from a major breakthrough. These outfits then withdrew themselves, still engaging the enemy.

Typical was the reaction of an anti-aircraft gunner, Private Michael Higgins, jr., 25, of Parkchester, New York city, the son of a deputy chief of the New York fire department.

"We pulled out of Gafsa night before last and out of Feriana last night," said Higgins, who served as a volunteer in the Canadian army but switched to the American forces after Pearl Harbor. "They were cold trips in open trucks.

"The whole valley was red with explosions as we destroyed everything of value that we couldn't take. The Germans won't find enough food left to feed a canary, or enough fuel to keep a cigaret lighter going.

"We don't like to move back. We want to fight. We can't win a war by moving back and we want to get back at them as soon as we are given the word."

Evacuated along with Higgins was "Sergeant," a five-months-old pup, which he bought from a French family for one dollar. It has been through 38 Stuka raids.

"He comes into the machine gun pit with me during air raids and doesn't like moving back any more than I do," Higgins explained. Another evacuee was Sergeant's sister, "Hester," owned by Private Tom Reed, 19, a truck driver, of Springfield, Ky.

Capt. Edward E. Cotter, 31, of Corning, Ia., led an infantry group which made a 15-mile trek to safety. Resting on a rock, he observed cheerfully, "we came through will all our men and with no trouble but sore feet."

All Allied planes at the Lepte airfield, long a sore spot to the German ground forces as well as to Nazi fliers, were safely flown away and the French and American forces stationed at nearby Feriana marched into the adjoining hills without hurry, leaving a company of light tanks to guard the rear.

French pack trains wound slowly across the plains, the mules and men loaded with equipment. As one French private, bent almost double under his pack, passed a group of American officers he straightened up, saluted smartly, and gave them a greeting with the only words of English he knew:

"Okay, hallo keed!"

REPORTS DENIED

Bulletin Declares Gandhi's Weaker, But Not Sinking.

NEW DELHI —(INS)— Reports that Mohandas K. Gandhi is in a "sinking" condition as the result of his self-imposed 21-day fast, now in its tenth day, were denied today.

An official bulletin said that the condition of the 73-year-old Hindu leader was unchanged except for "increasing weakness." Attending physicians advised him against receiving visitors.

Earlier today it was reported that Devadas Gandhi, eldest son of the mahatma, was hurrying to his father's bedside in the palace of the Aga Khan at Poona after hearing that he was in a "sinking" condition. Gandhi is being held prisoner as the result of a civil disobedience campaign last August. He began his latest fast in an effort to win freedom for associates in custody with him.

VOTE TO STAY ON WAR TIME

Council Ordinance Provides For Change in Fall; County Continues 'Fast' Time.

other state-operated or controlled institutions will conform to the new state time, according to instructions from Columbus today.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch has intimated that Richland county common pleas court will continue to operate on Eastern war time, Bailiff Ralph Hughes said today, although no official statement was available.

The bailiff said Judge Kalbfleisch had indicated an intention to abide by the decision of the county commissioners, which is to continue indefinitely on fast war time. Judge H. E. Culbertson of Ashland county, announced yesterday his court will pursue the state's new slow time beginning Tuesday.

Interurban bus lines operating in and out of Mansfield will retain Eastern war time, transportation officials said today, thus conforming to the action of railroads and other carrier concerns which will follow the federal government adherence to war time in all government functions.

Council voted for the seasonal time changes after Russell Porch. First ward members, accepted the Cleveland decision fixing the last Sunday of September and the third Sunday of February as the times for time changing. The ordinance was passed for immediate effect under emergency rules by unanimous vote. All members were present but Fred Miller, sr., Sixth ward member.

Mayor W. J. Locke assured members of council last night he would sign the measure, and affixed his signature this morning.

In Toledo, the Chamber of Commerce poll showed business interests preferred retention of fast time and city council is expected to comply. Columbus street cars and buses will operate on the new slow time, the city's transportation coordinator said today. Ironton, Zanesville, Lisbon and Athens councils have voted against time changes at present, in keeping with the action of most of Ohio's population and industrial centers.

Canton's council, voting to retain fast time, defeated a proposal to adopt slow time from Sept. 26 to March 1.

C. J. Crandall, secretary of the Ohio Motor Bus association, said in Columbus today that most interurban lines in Ohio will remain on the present fast time to avoid confusion with railroad schedules.

Cities Adopting Stabilization Plans

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Seven cities in Ohio and Michigan have employment stabilization plans in preparation, and 14 cities in these states and Kentucky and western Pennsylvania have such plans operating, Robert C. Goodwin, war manpower commission regional director, announced today.

Drawn up by local committees and awaiting approval of the regional director, the plans are designed to protect industries in areas which anticipate labor shortages.

Goodwin said the seven cities now working out means of protecting their industries are Battle Creek, Flint, Pontiac and Saginaw, Mich., and Canton, Lima and Sandusky, Ohio.

Akron, Detroit and Louisville, feeling the pinch of an insufficient supply of labor, were the first cities to control the movement of workers. Their move was followed by Dayton, Cleveland, Youngstown, Warren-Niles, Ravenna and Marion, Ohio; Port Hurson, Monroe, Muskegon and Grand Rapids, Mich., and Sharon, Pa.

Hearers Find Arrau Concert 'Monotonously Spectacular'

like to hear at least once in a while.

For instance, there were three Liszt compositions—Jeux d'Eau a la Villa d'Este, Etude in F minor and Concert Etude, the last played as an encore. All of the numbers were brilliantly executed, but even brilliance can get tiresome when there is too much of it.

In the two Chopin numbers, Ballade in A flat mapor and Scherzo in E major, Arrau again reminded the listener of Paderewski in his technical interpretation. There were the same sharp contrasts and massive tonal effects that the Polish master used to employ. There was none of the drawing-room nicety which so often creeps into the playing of Chopin.

As the first of his encores, the pianist played the Chopin-Liszt arrangement of the Polish song "My Joys."

The two encores were probably the most popular numbers on the program—and largely because of their melodic content. But the audience liked the last group, too. It contained: Granados' "The Nightingale and the Lover," played with somber intensity and understanding; Ravel's picturesque Jeux d'Eau, colorfully depicting the play of waters in a fountain; and Debussy's Feux d'Artifice, an excellent musical "imitation" of fireworks.

On the whole, members of the Mansfield Civic Music association, while fully aware that Arrau ranks as one of the most important of the new piano virtuosi, have heard concerts that they enjoyed more. The numbers on the program gave them very little chance to evaluate the artist as an interpreter of delicate or emotional music.

Almost throughout, the program demonstrated the pianist's remarkable power, his agility in handling complicated chord and octave passages, and his facility in swift runs and appeggios.

Next concert in the series will be presented by Paul Robeson, noted baritone.

MORE RABIES

Fifth Dog Dies, Wild Seeking Immunization Ruling.

With confirmation from state health department laboratories that a fifth Mansfield dog had died since Jan. 1 of rabies, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, announced today he has asked state officials to determine if the Ohio general code makes provision for compulsory immunization of all dogs.

Dr. Wild has asked the state health department to obtain a ruling from the attorney general's office. He fears that a near-epidemic last fall may have left a wide-spread virus among Mansfield dogs which will develop into serious proportions with warm and hot weather.

In event immunization treatment cannot be ordered it is likely that a blanket quarantine will be placed on the city's dogs in the near future, to extend until all danger of a rabies spread has passed.

JAPS WARNED OF 'MORTAL BLOW'

Col. Yahagi Tells Nipponese U. S. Plans to Hit Mainland From Alaska, China.

He said the United States already had 300 planes in China.

Midway also may be used as a base for air attacks on Tokyo, he said, although it would be difficult at present, because of the distance.

"It appears that they are going to make Dutch Harbor (Alaska) and Hawaii into strongholds and move forward with unity of their respective forces," Yahagi said.

By inference, he noted the possibility of attack from Siberia.

"The northern Manchukuoan border is at present calm," he said, adding: "The central attention of world moves is found in unsuspected locations."

20,000 Japs Attack In Northern Kiangsu

CHUNGKING —(INS)— More than 20,000 Japanese troops, including Marines, are attacking along both banks of the Yangtze river in northern Kiangsu province, a Chinese communique announced today.

Behind an aerial cover, they were driving toward the towns of Shangkanshang, Fengutuan and Chechiachang.

Other Japanese forces in Yunnan province have received 10,000 reinforcements from the Jap stronghold at Lashia in Burma and are attacking in western Yunnan in several directions.

The communique said there were "heavy casualties on both sides after 24 hours of bloody combat."

Fighting continues in four other provinces—Hupeh, Hunan, Kiangsi and Kwangtung.

Japanese House Swells Tojo's Powers

By Associated Press)

The Japanese house of representatives approved without discussion Thursday 26 bills one of which greatly increases Premier Hideki Tojo's powers over war production, the German radio reported today in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

Apparently this was one of the "dictatorial measures" against which the premier has defended himself in recent sessions of the diet, on one occasion denying that he was a dictator and was only "the moon receiving light from the sun (the emperor)."

Previous reports of the measure, as received from Tokyo broadcasts, said it would allow the premier to suppress the powers of other ministers if it became necessary to shove through his war materials program.

The former machinist who ravished and then strangled to death the 11-year-old girl in Morenci Aug. 29, 1942, spent his last hour with two Presbyterian ministers.

the base of operations in that theater of war.

In response to a reporter's question to Mme. Chiang regarding criticism that China was not utilizing her manpower to the utmost, the Chinese Joan D'Arc replied that we cannot fight with our bare hands.

The generalissimo's wife asserted that through five and one half years of war with Japan the Chinese armies had fought valiantly in the fields without protective air power and at times had fought with nothing but swords.

She asserted that Chinese manpower was being used on the battlefronts to the fullest extent that the supplies of munitions and machines of war require.

Mme. Chiang had particular words of praise for the American "Flying Tigers" for the work they had done in preventing Japanese bombers from raiding some centers of civilian populations in southern China.

Mme. Chiang said that Chunking was being bombed mercilessly by Jap raiding planes until the American volunteer air force arrived.

Alluding again to China's plea for greater aid, she declared that China needs munitions. Her nation, she said, already has manpower, and trained aviators, but has no planes or gasoline with which to fly them.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 19 1943.

"We shall have faith that, at the writing of peace, America and our other gallant allies will not be obtunded by the mirage of contingent reasons of expediency."—Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, in yesterday's address to congress.

Fighting Men Need Help From Home

THE FIGHTING ability of American soldiers, sailors and marines has already been so well demonstrated that people need have no doubts along that line.

This week's setbacks in North Africa were not a surprise to Washington officials who knew of conditions on that battlefront, and warnings during the past ten days have been plainly intended to prepare the public mind for some retreats, losses and increased casualty lists.

In this week's fighting inexperienced American troops were suddenly pitted against Rommel's seasoned Afrika korps, equipped with heavy tanks which the American armored force was unable to combat successfully.

There is no loss of confidence in the eventual outcome of the North African phase of the war, nor in the creditable showing that will be made by American forces in co-operation with the British armies, but the time is surely here for serious reflection on the fact that the war must be won by SUPERIOR FORCE and not by any inherited or acquired idea that the United States "can lick the world."

It is not flag-waving or sympathy that the men on the fighting front want from the people back home. They want ships, tanks, planes, guns, food. And they want these things quickly—so that they may not needlessly suffer and die!

They are not helped by government bickering, bureaucratic inefficiency, slowdowns, absenteeism and strikes in war industries, quibbling over wages and hours, complaints about rationing and taxes, or public chiseling of any sort.

"Reverses" on the fighting fronts reflect more serious reverses the national war effort has already had on the home front. No greater strength can be expected of the men who are sent to do the nation's fighting than is provided for them by the people back home, in the form of equipment to carry on a mechanized war.

Now is the time to "Pass the ammunition"—after which there will be all the more reason to "Praise the Lord."

Mansfield Continues On War Time

DECISION by city council to continue Mansfield on War time through the summer at least temporarily relieves what otherwise would have been the awkward situation of having two time standards applicable to local affairs and contacts with other cities.

Action by cities, in variance with the time-change law recently enacted by the state legislature, cannot be regarded as a satisfactory solution of the time problem as it relates to agricultural schedules, and the next step would seem to be an effort to convince federal authorities that Ohio should be in the Central time zone instead of the Eastern, rather than attempting to make this change by state legislation.

In any event, there will be no change of clocks in Mansfield and many other Ohio cities next Sunday morning and several months will be left for further consideration by the legislature and state and federal authorities.

Mme. Chiang Speaks for China

WHATEVER else Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo, may learn during her visit to the United States, it will not escape her notice that she is among people who have long been friendly to her country and who now earnestly desire to do everything possible to aid in permanently removing the Japanese menace from the Far East.

This American-educated woman left no doubt in the minds of those who heard her speak in the house of representatives yesterday that Japan is a formidable foe and that the road to Allied victory may be long and difficult.

Her views on post-war peace provide interesting food for thought. She said: "While we must not be visionary we must have vision, so that peace should not be punitive in spirit and should not be provincial, nationalistic, or even continental in concept, but universal in scope and humanitarian in action."

This from a woman who had said, but a little while before: "Let us not forget that during the first four-and-a-half years of total aggression China has borne Japan's sadistic fury unaided and alone."

As in the case of Josef Stalin, who is too busy directing Russia's part in the war to attend conferences, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek finds it advisable to stay at home, but the case for China is being well presented by his wife, and the armies of Stalin are continuing to perform in a way that excuses his absence from meetings.

Shouldn't Ignore Traffic Lights

SOUND POLICY is expressed by Traffic Commissioner Boals in announcing that civilian drivers of motor vehicles intended for army use must comply with traffic regulations when passing through Mansfield.

The statement credited to the woman who was driving the army truck which was involved in a crash at the corner of Park avenue west and Mulberry street Wednesday night evidences misunderstanding of this requirement. She was quoted as having told officers that drivers of such truck convoys "were instructed to ignore red lights."

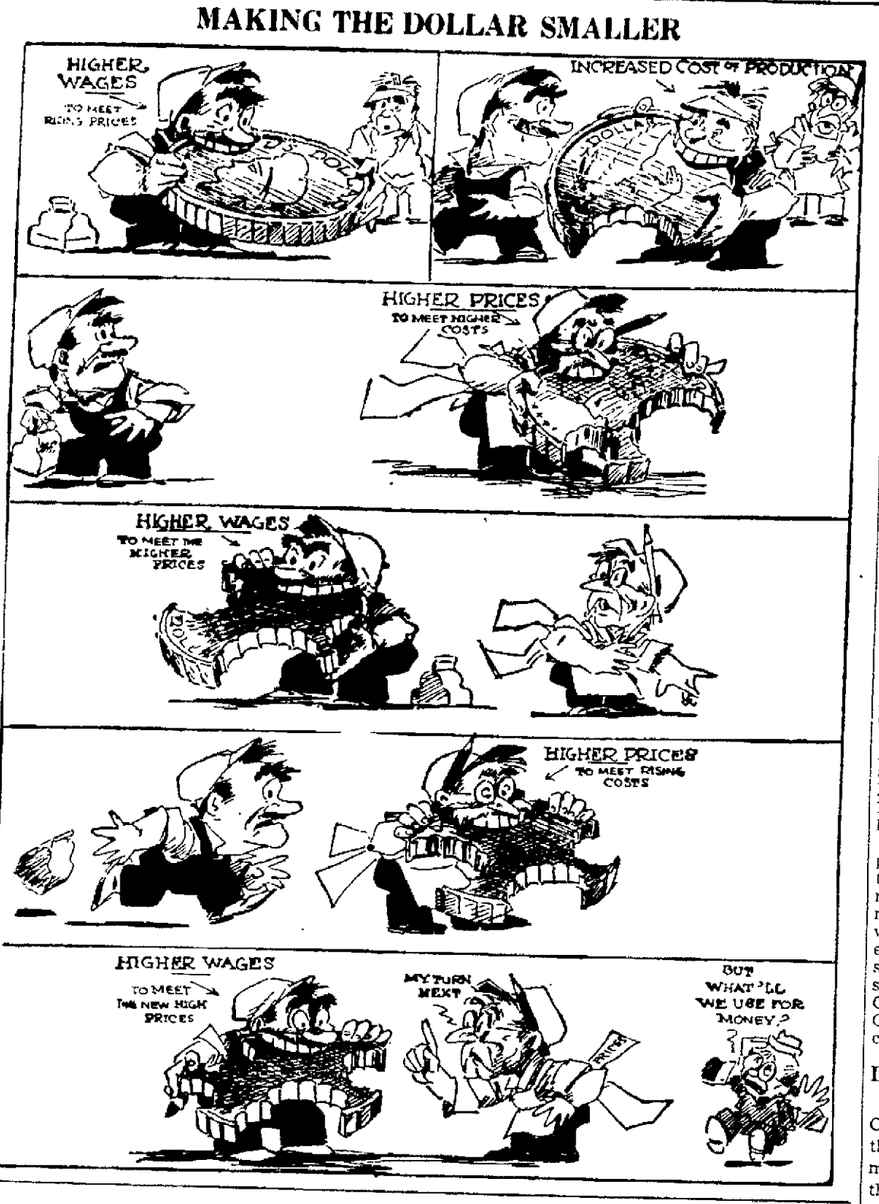
It is understood that army convoys are given police escort in passing through cities, so as not to be delayed by traffic lights, but a dangerous situation would be created if civilian drivers making delivery of army trucks were permitted to ignore red lights at intersections without warning to cross traffic.

Professor Pitkin says that within ten years "no human being living today will be able to recognize the United States"—leaving it to individual opinion as to whether that will be good or bad.

It is the Toledo Blade's Jack Warwick who stops, in the midst of war, to observe: "Genius has done wonderful things, but nobody has ever invented a satisfactory substitute for apple pie."

No wonder the founding fathers kicked about "taxation without representation"—even with "representation" it's tough enough.

MAKING THE DOLLAR SMALLER



Lower Percentage of Plane Loss

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If you have been gasping over the number of army and navy airplane accidents and wondering if a lot of them aren't the result of sabotage, you can stop right now.

Congressional concern over these accidents resulted in some investigating and Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war in charge of the air force, has spread on the record a pretty thorough analysis of the situation.

SO FAR as the Air Transport Command is concerned (they deliver planes and manpower to the 10 theaters of war all over the globe): In 12 months, the ATC established a record of losing only one plane out of 333 delivered; but in the last six months, only one plane has been lost out of each 500 delivered.

As for the army itself: In the first eight months of last year (the latest period for which figures have been totalled) the army flew 74.3 per cent more hours and 98.5 more miles than in the whole ten-year period from 1930-40. The rate of accidents per thousand hours flown was lower than in the previous ten years.

Warplanes of today are faster, heavier and some carry numbers of persons that only a few years ago would have been thought fantastic. When a big plane goes down now, it is likely to carry with it 15 or 20 men. Yet actual deaths per flying hours have increased only five one-hundredths over the 1930-40 period.

"It is well to point out," says Lovett, "that the number of accidents has increased and will increase in some proportion to the tremendous increase in the number of hours flown. However, the important criterion is whether the rate of accidents in relation to hours flown has increased disproportionately."

In peace time, it was enough if a pilot could take off in clear weather and perhaps bring his plane home through a mild storm. Today pilots are being trained to fly in the Arctic blizzards of Iceland and the Aleutians; in those flash storms that constantly whip the south Pacific; in the tropical rains and sandstorms of North Africa; and in the fogs over Europe.

THE only method of training to combat these weather hazards is to fly in them and the United States in that respect is one of the great training centers of the world. It has all kinds of weather and our pilots in training get a little taste of most of it before they are sent into combat.

Such bad weather flying increases accidents but it also makes for greater safety later on.

That box score which showed that we were losing only one plane in combat to each five to seven lost by the Japanese and one to every three lost by the Germans can't be attributed entirely to superiority of planes. Most of the credit must go to the men who fly them—and back of that to the training those men received before they got their wings.

Dave Boone Says:

IT'S too bad every American could not have listened to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the generalissimo of China, address congress. To hear this great Chinese lady speak in the purest English, without fumbling over a single word or pronunciation, was something. She spoke better English than has been heard in America in years.

* * *

In fact, she had congressmen, high government officials and most of our editors and writers groggy as they pushed to the dictionary to look up a couple of good English words which we've neglected.

* * *

But Madame Kai-Shek is a better educated American than most Americans. She got her schooling in our colleges, and spent years of her girlhood here and her perfect choice of words made Americans feel pretty ignorant. But it brought us closer to China than anything that's happened in this war so far.

* * *

The squawkers are sounding off about that defeat of American troops in Tunisia, and it does look like we took a bad beating. But that's only round one. We've had lots of early lickings in our history, but we always came back with the kayo wallop.

Samuel Martin, former Mansfield resident, was here from Seattle, Wash., to visit relatives and friends.

Rex Small moved from Sturges avenue into new home, 67 Glenwood boulevard.

Home on the W. C. Starkey farm at Springmills was destroyed by fire.

Builders' Supply company's office on East Fifth street was burglarized.

Timely Editorial

Legislature Time.

We might argue all day about the relative merits of old standard time and war time. But nobody can say anything good about legislature time.

Legislature time is what a state gets when its assembly decides to set the clocks its own way. Michigan, Ohio and Georgia are examples. All three of these states are finding out what they should have known in the first place.

No matter what a legislature says, the larger cities must set their time by the cities in other states. All their business with other cities and the transportation between cities depends on the clock. Garbling the time just makes for a lot of unnecessary confusion. When the larger cities in a state hold to war time many of the smaller cities that do business with them follow suit. Meanwhile the more rural communities swing back to legislature time. Before they get through nobody in the state knows whether it is noon or 1 o'clock.

Legislators who think the federal government has tinkered with "God's time" are entitled to get mad about it. But they don't happen to be in a position to set everything right.—Kansas City Star.

As Others See It

Health And Diet

Health Questions Are Answered.

—By DR. CLENDENING

D. P.:—I have been in bed five weeks with rheumatic fever. Does one have to have absolute bed rest? Does this fever come right back again if one is exposed to cold or gets chilled?

Answer: It is wise to enjoin a long period of bed rest in rheumatic fever in order to protect the heart. Although it is true that rheumatic fever tends to recur, there is no rule or regularity about its recurrence.

C. R. S.:—What is the cause of harelip. Is it hereditary? Would appreciate any other comments.

Answer: Harelip is a failure of fusion of the structures of the face in the midline. It is often accompanied by cleft palate, which is a failure of fusion of the two sides of the roof of the mouth. In early development of the body, long before birth, the face is formed by the two sides moving forward and fusing. You see evidence of the fusion of the lip in the ordinary cleft or depression in the midline of the upper lip. A dimple in the chin is another sign of the site of the union. Harelip is not hereditary. Harelip alone which is not accompanied by cleft palate can be remedied very easily by a surgical operation. In the hands of an up-to-date surgeon the operation leaves no evidences whatever of the original deformity.

J. K.: What is a prolapsed stomach?

Answer: A prolapsed stomach is one that has fallen down out of the place that the stomach usually occupies in the abdomen. It generally goes with the thin, linear type of build. It is not serious and with some little attention to care and diet, I believe the symptoms can be held in abeyance.

GOP Uses Cry of 'Bureaucrats' as Smokescreen to Kill FDR Reforms

WASHINGTON—What actually is happening back stage in congress is that Republican reactionaries backed by Harry Byrd Democrats are using the cry of "bureaucrats" as a smokescreen to sabotage some of the major reforms Roosevelt built up during his first eight years.

Best example is the Securities and Exchange Commission. This police organization of Wall Street was about the first thing FDR started after the stock market depression days after 1932. Almost universally it has been recognized as a reform which must stick. But now, behind a smokescreen of attacking bureaucrats, congressional reactionaries have quietly moved in and cut SEC appropriations to the bone. Already the Securities and Exchange Commission has been exiled to Philadelphia, and now, away from the Washington spotlight, it will be whittled down to 1932 days if GOP reactionaries have their way.

PEARSON

Note: Meanwhile the state department still hopes to persuade the Canadian government to ratify the extradition treaty permitting swindlers of America who take refuge in Canada to be extradited to this country. The senate has okayed extradition of stock market operators swindling Canadian citizens but so far the Canadian parliament hasn't reciprocated.

Doughty Fighter.

Venerable Bob Doughton, North Carolina's longtime chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, sees red when it comes to the Ruml Plan.

Ex-Undersecretary of the Treasury John Hanes, also from North Carolina, and U. S. Chamber of Commerce tax lobbyist Ellsworth Alvord have been nipping doggedly at Doughton's heels trying to win him over to Ruml. But a religious fervor comes into Doughton's eyes when he fights tax postponement.

"If you press me on this," Doughton tells Hanes and Alvord, "you'll never get any more help from me on other taxes."

Doughton believes that taxes have to be paid, one way or the other, and that talk of forgiving one year's taxes is nothing less than sacrilegious.

The few members of the Ways and Means Committee who are for the Ruml plan have been arguing to their colleagues about the danger of "doubling"—in other words paying two year's taxes in one.

But FDR has asked for 16 billion dollars more in taxes this year, most of which will have to come from individuals. Since 1942 income taxes will come to about 13 billion, that means only 3 billion more to make up FDR's 16 billion.

Enemies of the Ruml plan argue therefore, that if you forgive 1942 taxes, namely 13 billion, you just have to turn around and raise 16 billion plus 13 billion in 1943. So what difference does it make, they say, which pocket you take your taxes out of as long as the income brackets each remain about the same.

Capital Chaff.

WHEN Postmaster General Frank Walker was shown a recent news photo of himself, he said, "Is that Herbert Hoover or me?" . . . FDR has a panel of three photos of himself, showing him in three successive stages of eating a hot dog. . . . WPB's Conservation Division has collected 400,000 pounds of silk and nylon stockings for use in making powder bags and parachutes. . . . In addition to charting new strategy, reason for sending Lt. General Hap Arnold to Chungking was to let him see the "air show" in China and sell him on more support. Everyone who goes there comes away wanting to send more aid to support — if Willkie and Clare Luce are any criterion. . . . Already the tariff commission is studying the question of a tariff on rubber to protect the new synthetic rubber factories from Malay rubber after we win the war. In other words, we're fighting to win back the Dutch East Indies, but will bar their stuff after we succeed.

Milk Bonuses.

EASTERN dairy farmers who have been putting pressure on the agriculture department don't take too kindly to the proposed incentive payments to dairymen for increased milk production.

Payments would be based on production of the past three years and a sliding scale of bonuses would be paid to farmers increasing their milk yield above a fixed figure—probably a bit below their three-year average.

Instead, dairymen argue that the consumer can afford to pay higher prices and should do so. Higher prices, they say, is the best way to get more milk. Price stabilization officials, however, argue that once the price of milk is increased, the props will be knocked right from under them when it comes to opposing John L. Lewis and his demand for increased wages in the coal fields.

Note: Government plans for getting more farm labor include importation of more Mexican workers, movement of migratory workers, recruiting of high school boys and girls, the establishment of labor camps and establishment of a women's army.

Merry-Go-Round.

MUNRO LEAF, who wrote Ferdinand the Bull, hailed as a children's classic on pacifism, has now got himself a captain's commission in the army, and is more belligerent than any West Pointer. He even believes that it is sacrilegious to criticize anyone in the army, or anything the army does—especially the Services of Supply, to which he is detailed. . . . Congress probably will pass a quick temporary tax provision requiring 20 per cent of all income to be collected for taxes at the source. Then the permanent tax bill, passed more leisurely, will provide the exact amounts to be paid. . . . Justice Byrnes, British Supply Chief Lewellyn and the Russian Ambassador all spoke impressively at the dinner of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. But chief recollection the editors took home was the wife of the Fighting French representative serenely smoking a long black cigar in public.

ERNIE PYLE

The Roving Reporter

Editor's Note—In the following article, and for the next few days, Ernie Pyle will report on the way of life that confronts our fighting men on the Tunisian front. You'll see that Tunisia is no "bed of roses."

THE TUNISIAN FRONT—(By Wireless)—It must be hard for you folks at home to conceive how our troops right at the front actually live. In fact it is hard to describe it to you even when I'm among them, living in somewhat the same way they are.

You can scarcely credit the fact that human beings—the same people you've known all your life—could adjust themselves so acceptingly to a type of living that is only slightly above the caveman stage.

SOME of our troops came directly to the Tunisian front after the original occupation of North and West Africa, and have been here ever since. They have not slept in a bed for months. They've lived through this vicious winter sleeping outdoors on the ground.

They haven't been paid in three months. They have been on British rations most of the time, and British rations, though good, get mighty tiresome.

They never take off their clothes at night, except their shoes. They don't get a bath oftener than once a month. One small detachment acquired lice and had to be fumigated, but all the rest have escaped so far.

They move so frequently they don't attempt to put in many home touches, as the men do at the more permanent camps toward the rear. Very few of the front-line troops have ever had any leave. They never go to town for an evening's fun. They work all the time.

Nobody keeps track of the days or weeks. I'll wager that 90% of our frontline troops never know when Sunday comes.

Furthermore, the old traditional differences between day and night have almost ceased to exist. Nighttime no longer necessarily means rest, nor daytime work. Often it's just reversed. The bulk of our convoying of supplies and shifting of troops is done at night. The soldiers are accustomed to traveling all night, sometimes three or four nights in a row. Irregularity of sleep becomes normal. One soldier told me he once went three days and nights without sleep.

You see men sleeping anywhere, anytime. The other day I saw a soldier asleep in blankets under an olive tree at 2 in the afternoon. A few feet away a full colonel was sleeping soundly on the ground. In battle you just go until you drop.

It isn't always possible to get enough food up to the fighting soldiers. I have just been with one artillery outfit in the mountains who were getting only one cold meal a day.

Nurses tell me that when the more seriously wounded reach the hospital they are often so exhausted they fall asleep without drugs, despite their pain.

THE WAR coarsens most people. You live rough and talk rough, and if you didn't toughen up inside you simply wouldn't be able to take it. An officer friend of mine, Lieut. Lenni Bessman of Milwaukee, was telling me an incident of a recent battle that touched him deeply.

One evening he and another officer came up to a tiny farmhouse, which was apparently empty. To be on the safe side he called out "Who's there?" before going in. The answer came back: "Captain Blank, and who the hell wants to know?"

They went in and found the captain, his clothes covered with blood, heating a can of rations over a gasoline flame. They asked if they could stay all night with him. He said he didn't give a damn. They started to throw their blankets down, and the captain said:

"Look out for that man over there."

There was a dead soldier lying in a corner.

The captain was cooking his supper and preparing to stay all night alone in that same room. The flood and fury of death about him that day had left him utterly indifferent both to the companionship of the living and the presence of the dead.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

How We Miss Them!

ONE SHORT year ago, on every trip I made to town, it was a familiar sight to see a tramp along the highway. This picturesque adornment of rural scenes has completely passed from our picture. That man, of torn brimmed, weather beaten hat, of tattered baggy trousers, filthy, ragged coat and leaky, thicksoled shoes is gone.

Sometimes he carried all his earthly belonging tied in a thin, grab, threadbare blanket. His voice spoke apologetically at the farmhouse door, to ask for what the thrifty wife could spare for such as he and if he might sleep at the stack, or in the barn with the animals. Pity for the wayfarer often caused a sumptuous supper to be forthcoming—or a hearty breakfast when morning came.

The peddler with heavy suitcase and nervous foreign accent is gone too. With what skill he used to open his heavy grip like a ponderous book, and spread bright scarves and gorgeous shawls and intricate, handmade laces about the living room. Another had metal gadgets of all kinds—pins, screws, tea strainers, patent clothes pins and the like. With trifling items he bought his dinner and never failed to be a hearty eater.

There was a brush salesman; four salesmen of extracts, spices, cosmetics and the like. Only one still comes, and he just half as often. His business is good—"Can't keep the stuff. Farmers just take it away from me." He still had a few half-pound packages of cocoa—my wife bought the last.

Magazine salesmen are gone, too—and truckers with linoleum remnants. Those were the standbys of other days—always eager to take their pay in fresh farm produce, fat poultry or fresh eggs. The fruit tree vendor makes his rounds on foot. He gives inspiring talks and shows pictures and samples of his fruit while he rests his weary feet.

The peddlers of household aids—quick cleansing fluids, polishes and disinfectants—the patent medicine man, and the makers of cure-alls—all are gone. Perhaps these men are doing a rushing business for Uncle Sam—we wish them well. They were a crafty, thrifty, energetic, eager race. And we do miss them!

But of course our country could not wage a war like this without some beneficial results!

Your Federal Income Tax

NO. 41: TRADES AND EXCHANGES (PART 1)

Among the forms of transactions to which consideration must be given in preparing a Federal income tax return are trades and exchanges of property. When a person receives goods for services, as in the case of a workman taking groceries for wages, or a lawyer receiving securities for professional services, a question of income tax liability arises. It also arises when a farmer trades farm produce for services or goods, such as groceries or farm equipment, or when cattle or farms or other property is traded. It arises frequently in security transactions, particularly in reorganizations, where one form of security is exchanged for another form of security of the same or a different corporation. All such transactions may give rise to taxable gain.

In the case of exchange of one's services or the product of one's labor (as farm produce) for goods or property, the value of the goods or property received in exchange becomes ordinary income reportable in item 1 of the return Form 1040. Where property is exchanged for property of another kind, or for services, the transaction may give rise to a capital gain or loss (if the property exchanged is a capital asset), reportable in Schedule F, item 8 (a) of the return Form 1040; and where the property exchanged is not a capital asset the transaction may give rise to ordinary gain or loss reportable in Schedule G and item 8 (b) of the return Form 1940. In such cases, the measure of gain or loss is the difference between the basis of the property exchanged and the fair market value of the property received in exchange.

Where, however, property is exchanged for property of a like kind, the transactions, within certain definite limitations, is considered as giving rise neither to gain or loss, and accordingly is nontaxable.

The general provision regarding nontaxable exchanges is that the property exchanged must have been held for productive use in trade or business or for investment, and exchanged solely for property of a like kind to be held either for productive use in trade or business or for investment. The simplest example of such an exchange would be a swap of work horses.

It sometimes happens that a taxpayer has an involuntary gain, as when property is sold under condemnation, or is destroyed or stolen, with the receipt of insurance. If the proceeds of involuntary conversion are "forthwith in good faith invested in property which is similar or related in service or use to the property converted," no gain shall be recognized. If, however, any part of the money received is not so reinvested, the gain in excess of the amount not reinvested would be taxable. The taxpayer must be able to prove that the money received was the money actually reinvested in such other property. Moreover, certain restrictions are imposed on the kind of property in which reinvestment may be made. For instance, an investment in improved real estate of the proceeds from forced sale of unimproved real estate, would not be considered as an investment in property "similar or related in service or use," and any gain would be taxable.

THIS ALARM'S THE REAL THING

YOUNGSTOWN—(INS)—Victims of a "practical" joker's activities as objectives of three false-alarms within the past year, Mr. and Mrs. Basel Davis suffered a $2,500 real estate loss recently when their home caught fire from an over-heated furnace.

Their dog died in the fire from the extreme heat. Mr. and Mrs. Davis were returning from church when the appearance of the fire trucks, speeding toward his home, led Davis to believe the joker was at work again.

Sleep Called Answer to Her Beauty

By MME. QUI VIVE

There's nothing like long hours of restful sleep for warding off the depressing evidence of too many birthdays No item of the cosmetic display equals it for giving freshness to the skin. You can tote home all kinds of creams and lotions, use them faithfully but if you crawl into bed late and drag out early, they won't do a bit of good. They have their uses, but they can't get in their helpful licks if the one who uses them suffers from an excess of wear and tear does nothing to recharge her energy motors.

You midnight prowler, will pay for the late hours some day. Horrid little crinkles will be creeping round your eyes. The tissues will be swollen. Time does enough to us, goodness knows. Why help along the old gent with the long white whiskers? It doesn't make sense.

Rushing through a busy day, as most of us are doing, means that one is pretty tired when evening comes The only way to knit oneself together again, pick up vitality, is to put one's head on the pillow, pull up the blankets, hope the sand man will soon close one's eyes.

The human body accumulates poisonous waste substances due to fatigue that lowers vitality. Regain energy and these products are disposed of. Give yourself a chance to make necessary repairs. If you are always on the go, or drudging away at a hard job, if you rob yourself of rest, you shouldn't growl and grumble about how you look. We can stand a terrific amount of work if we have sufficient sleep and relaxtion.

To get up tired in the morning is to be inefficient. The brain won't be normally keen, gloomy though it will creep into it. The step will lack ginger. Yet there are countless women who tear through busy days and, night after night, stay up until all hours. The time comes when the human machine begins to creak. You can't break the laws of health without being punished

We need more sleep in the winter than in the summer because we get less sunshine, have less exercise.

And don't forget that there's such a thing as being so tired you can't sleep That's because the nervous system is protesting. The brain becomes jittery. Muscles are tense, it is almost impossible to relax.

Physicians say that insomnia is on the increase because of the war. Don't let that catch you. It will if you do not take care of your health.
